The question how much cream, by messure, was required to make a pound of butter came up last winter, and was referred to the highest practical authorities in the west upon dairy matters. It elicited the fact that the quantity sometimes varied fully one-third, and even more. Some milk throwing up 20 percent of cream will be as rich in butter late as other samples showing 30 percent. These variations may be caused by difference in food, temperature of milk when set, or other circums. neasure, was required to make a pound of ture of milk when set, or other circum stances. Whatever may be the causes, the fact is well established. The cream gauge is, therefore, a very uncertain test of a cow's value for butter making.

An Elephant's Sagneity.

Mee York Tribune.

An officer of the Bengal army had a very fine and favorite elephant, which was supplied daily in his presence with a certain allowance of food, but being compelled to absent himself on a journey the keeper of the beast diminished the ration of food and the animal became daily thinner and weaker. When its master returned the weaker. When its master returned the slephant exhibited the greatest signs of pleasure. The feeding time came and the seeper laid before it the former full allow-nce of food, which it divided into two parts, consuming one immediately and eaving the other untouched. The officer knowing the asgacity of his favorite, saw mmediately the fraud that had been practiced, and made the man confess his vine.
